- The Dragon Boat Festival is a traditional festival in China. It has unique customs, such as: eating rice dumplings, racing dragon boats, hanging sachets and other celebrations. These activities are suitable for young children, which can not only exercise and develop children's hands-on ability, but also enhance children's understanding and interest in traditional Chinese culture.
- During the promotion of the activity, some parents personally made zongzi for their children. The activity can arouse parents' attention to traditional Chinese culture. Parents' feedback strengthens teachers' supporting role in the construction and implementation of excellent traditional cultural courses.
- From the observation, children enjoy the traditional culture of festivals, especially in the production of traditional arts, which shows their sense of identity and pride in traditional Chinese festivals.
